

Echo

Echo is a chair that embodies the harmony between structure and absence, where negative space becomes an integral part of its form. Inspired by repetition and resonance, its lightweight frame plays with voids and angles, creating a visually striking yet remarkably comfortable seat. The carefully placed cutouts reduce weight without compromising strength, allowing light and air to pass through, enhancing the chair's sense of airiness while making it visually dynamic from every angle. The woven seat adds warmth and tactility, balancing the precision of the geometric frame. More than just a chair, Echo is an exploration of how absence can shape presence, turning emptiness into an essential design element.
